SOCIAL SCIENCES TRIAL ESSAY

Write a 1,000 word essay on ANY of the following topics:

- It has been suggested that BME (black and minority ethnic) parents with mental health problems are more likely to experience social exclusion in the UK than their white counterparts. Why might this be?
- Is the use of restraint in care homes ever justified, and under what circumstances?
- Does current legislation for the protection of vulnerable adults in the UK set too high a threshold for intervention and hence place adults at risk of harm?
- What impact does isolation in old age have upon mental and physical health, and what are the best interventions to alleviate its impacts?

The manner in which you structure your analysis is totally dependent on you, and it should not exceed 1,000 words (excluding abstract, references, bibliography, appendix, and table of contents).

As a guide,

- Your work must be fully referenced in the Harvard referencing style
- Your work must include an abstract, introduction, body and conclusion.
- You must refer to recently published academic and medical journals, newspaper articles, economic data, and books when conducting your research
- Your analysis should be written up to at least a 65% standard.

The trial essay would be assessing the following,

- Your research skills
- Your written English skills
- Your ability to conduct analysis on non readily available data, and write concise but high quality reports and analysis
- Your knowledge of politics related subjects
- Your ability to write structured and accurate reports and analysis, especially when detailed assessment guidelines are not provided.

Good Luck.
